

Dear Families

As you all know, Autism is something that is close to my heart as my daughter is autistic. This week is Autism Awareness week and as a school, I feel we need to highlight the many strengths, talents and love autistic children bring into our life and school. Therefore, I would like to have a non-uniform on Thursday 30th March. We would like all our children to wear bright colours to show support and if families want to make a voluntary contribution - we would love to donate this to the National Autism Society.

I want to also thank all of our families for another fabulous term. This term has been so eventful and I am so proud of the children and the progress they continue to make. Our staff have been amazing and the school continues to develop and grow. We are so grateful to all our families for the support and encouragement we have received this term and we cannot wait to make more fabulous memories in the summer term.

I hope all our families have a great Ramadan & Easter.

Thanks
Mr Tankard
